LOCAL MISCELLANY.

COVERT D. BENNETT. The third trial of Mrs. Jennie R. Smith and Covert D. Bennett, who are charged with the murder of Officer Smith, of Jersey City, on August 1, 1878. was begun yesterday morning at the Hudson County Court House. On February 10, 1879, the first trial was begun and was continued for seven days, when it was suddenly stopped by the insanity of Herman Duben, one of the jurors. Several postponements followed, and the trial was again begun on May 12, 1879. It lasted twelve days, and both prisoners were found guilty and were sentenced to be hanged. On July 26 the Supreme Court Judges decided to give the prisoners a new trial. The usual crowd tried to get into the court room yesterday but were not admitted. Judge Knapp was the presiding judge, and Lay Judge Knapp was the presiding judge, and Lay Judges Brinker-hoff and Fry were also on the bench. Gilber Collins, of counsel for Mrs. Smith, asked to have his client tried separately. Ex-Judge Hoffman, on behalf of Bennett, made a similar motion. Attorney-General Stockton replies for the State. The motion was denied. Only eleven jurors were secured out of the panel of forty-eight. The remaining juror was obtained from the general panel. The jury is as follows:

Herman W. Graves, Patrick Duft, David J.
Swain, James Commings, Edward Cochran, William
Chevalier, Charles W. Wilson, Francis Coyle, William H, Childs, John H. Post, Matthew Conklin and Chevsher, Charles W. Wilson, Francis Coyle, William H. Childs, John H. Post, Matthew Conkin and Robert Edgewood.

Prosecutor McGill opened the case with a short history of the circumstances attending the murder. He said that it would be developed in the case that Benoett and Mrs. Smith were actuated by an unholy love, and that this love afforded a motive for the crime. Edlow W. Harrison and C. W. Post described the plans which had been drawn of the house where the murder was committed. There was an opening in the floor of the closet leading into Mrs. Smith's apartments. The hole measured 1 foot and 5 inches by 2 feet.

James McGregor testified that he occupied the unper apartments of the house where the murder was committed. He was called down stars by Mrs. Smith, viewed the body and went for a doctor. "Mrs. Smith said to me," he continued, "he's killed, he's killed," I saw the body lying on the bod and covered with a quilt. The head was covered with a pillow and blood was spattered all over the door, Mrs. Smith said to me then, 'I saw a tall man here with something white over his face. I tasted something sweet and then I went to sleep again. I remember nothing more until I felt Harry's cold arm against me.' See said that her husband objected to the little dog sleeping on the bed liceanse it had fleas. Mrs. Smith did not appear to be excited; her voice was serious, but not sad. The little dog always barked at strangers, but I did not hear him bark that night." On cress-cammation he said that fifty persons entered the house the next day, but he did not hear the dog bark at all.

Mrs. McGregor, the mother of the last witness, house the next day, but he did not hear the dog bark at all.

Mrs. McGregor, the mother of the last witness, testified: "When I was atoused by Mrs. Smith's sereams she looked very sick. She said to me, 'Look where Harry lies murdered there.' I asked her how it happened. 'Harry came home and went to bed about 11 o'check,' she said. 'I went to bed at 11:30. About 1:45 a. m. I got up for a drink of water. I was aroused later and saw a man with a white cloth over his face. He put something over my month. I next felt something cold against my arm; it was my husband's elbow.' Mrs. Smith then fainted in my arms. I asked her afterward what could be the motive of the murder, and she said she didn't know. When she found the officers were watching her she said, 'Why am I thus watched! Many a murder has been committed and never found out."

Hooper-st., Brooklyn, testified to finding by an analysis of the pie an acid, in amount about one per cent of the whole, which being reduced by chemical tests was proved to be aniline yellow, and also a brown dye, probably Bismarck brown. He proved the poisonous character of the aniline yellow by experiments on a dog. Dr. George A. Prochazka, of No. 33 Nassau-st., testified that he had found quantities of the same substance in bicees of the liver and stomach of the dead man that had been analyzed by him. There were no metallic substances in either the pie or the organs. Charles Schinkel, the baker who sold the pie, was unable to account for the presence of the poison, except on the theory that some enemy had thrown it into the cream while it was being prepared. His cake foreman, August Rader, and one of his breadmakers, Hugo Kirchner, had quarrelled, and on Tuesday of the week when the lemon pies were baked. ACCIDENT TO AN ELECTRICIAN. TEMPORARY INJURY TO W. A. SAWYER'S SIGHT-EXPERIMENTING WITH SMALL LIGHTS.

W. A. Sawyer, the electrician, met with a severe, although not a serious accident on Tuesday night while exhibiting his small electric light in a house on Fifty-fourth-st. that he is fitting up for experiments. The electric machine and power being in Fifty-third-st., the current was at times interrupted, for it rained, and the moisture sometimes caused a "short circuit." Mr. Sawyer had given instructions that the current should be continuously kept up; but at the time of the accident the current had failed, and he was holding in his hands the two carbon points and waiting for a spark, when the circuit should be restablished. This suddenly occurred, and a voltaic are was formed, subjecting Mr. Sawyer's unprotected eyes to a light of 10,000 candie-power. He broke the circuit at once, and for a time felt no evil effect from the exposure; and even at a late hour, when a blur came over his eyes while with some friends at the Rossmore Hotel, he supposed it was only a passing effect from looking at the strong light, such as be had often experienced before. The difficulty however, increased, and severe pain set in. He sent for Dr. J. L. Campbell, living next door to him, who said it was a case of severe congestion of the interior of the eye, produced by the strong light; but he did not consider it a scrious matter, and thought that a short confinement in a dark room would be sufficient to restore the sight.

Mr. Sawyer received a Tribelne reporter at his Fifty-third-st., the current was at times inter-sufficient to restore the sight.

Mr. Sawyer received a Tribune reporter at his house yesterday afternoon, and explained how the accident occurred. He has recently taken out thirty or forty additional patents for his new light, which is to be of about the same power as gas light; but until he has the completed light ready to show, he says he does not intend to talk about it.

HENRY A. HOLLAND'S SUICIDE.

An effort was made yesterday by Coroner Herrman to solve the mystery of Henry A. Holland's suicide in the University Building on January 12, but without much success. Little testimony berond that already published was produced, and no new witnesses were tomad to throw any light upon the motives that led to the act. Edward H. Moeran, the lawyer whose schoolmate and friend the dead man was, and with whose family he lived, bore witness to his uniformly cheerful disposition. He knew of no financial difficulties in which Mr. Holland could have been involved, and could not explain what led to his suicide, except on the supposition that he was the victim of temporary insanity. After his death he had recalled many incidents of the past two or three months that had strengthened that belief, and had found in his papers evidence that his mind at times had wandored. The jury came to the conclusion that he was temporarily intent.

OPENING THE SAILORS' HOME.

The Sailers' Home of the American Seaman's Friend Society, at No. 190 Cherry-st., which was fully described in THE TRIBUNE Tuesday, was opened yesterday afternoon. Richard P. Buck, president of the society, said in the course of his remarks that $6,000 was needed to finish the building. The Rev. Dr. Hall described the various early efforts in this city to aid the sailor, and addresses were made also by the Rev. Drs. Spaulding. Hopper, Rockwell, Prime and Bevan, the Rev. Measrs. Murphy, Jones and Walker, William E. Dodge, Mr. Archibald, the British Consul, and others. A check for $1,000 was given to the Home Just before the excretes began by a gentleman whose name was withheld. opened yesterday afternoon. Richard P. Buck.

German sailor, who had been locked up on a charge of drunkenness. He was not identified as having ever been a visitor in Prince-st, and will be released. Captain McDonnell had two other men taken before the landiady of Annie Downey yesterday, but they were not identified as having been in the house on the night of the murder. The police are following every clew obtained, but have not made any discovery of importance. They have concluded that the case is one of murder and not of suicide.

THE MEIERHOEFFER MURDER..

THE STORY OF MR. PIERSON, THE SCHOOLMASTER, REPEATED IN DETAIL-THE LAST SEEN OF THE MURDERED MAN-LAMMENS'S TERROR ON VISIT

There was the usual large attendance of spectaors yesterday at the trial at Newark of Francis Lammens and Mrs. Meierhoeffer for the murder of John Meierhoeffer. Mr. Pierson, the schoolmaster, who boarded with the Meierhoeffers, was recalled and testified that Mr. Meierhoaffer came into the house on one occasion and "made a fuss"; after he had gone out Mrs. Meierhoeffer asked the witness what she could give her husband to make him sick; witness suggested salt and water and calomel. His mpression was that she was jesting. On cross-examination the witness told of occasions when hard words had passed between Lammens and the old man. When Mrs. Meierhoeffer came to the witness's room on Thursday morning she said she must do something before night for Franz had made a threat to blow up the place and kill her and the old man if she didn't have him. She requested the witness to write to Mr. Joyce, because the latter could arrest any man in the State,

The witness related what had occurred when he came home from school in the afternoon, and was informed by signs from Mrs. Meierhoeffer of what had occurred. She said that Lammens had told ber to say the old man had gone to Newark, and afterward when he asked Lammens he said the old man had gone to Newark. The woman was auxions for Lammens's arrest and showed considerable fear of him. From the time he returned home until he went for the officers the witness knew that John Meierhoeffer lay dead in the cellar, but he acted as it he knew nothing about it because of Lammens. In the evening the woman asked Lammens to go out and lock the barn. When he had gone she became agitated and urged witness to go to Orange. She said that Lammens had shot her husband and kieked him down stairs and had then washed up the blood. She said she witnessed the act from the back door. Mrs. Meierhoeffer always treated her husband kindly; witness never saw any conduct on her part unbecoming a wife. The old man would frequently raise a row over nothing, and the wife told the witness he called her "an old bandbox." On the afterwoon of the murder a lady stopped at the house and got apples.

raise a row over nothing, and the wife loid the wifness he called her "an old bandbox." On the afternoon of the murder a lady stopped at the house and got apples.

Theodore Meierhoeffer, recalled by the State, testified that when he came from Orange in the morning, bringing back the Joyce letter, his mother told him to leave the house, so that Lammens could not see him.

James Bell, a milkman, testified to seeing John Meierhoeffer at 11:10 a. m., on the Thursday of the murder, and delivering milk cans to him.

Several witnesses were called to testify that they saw John Meierhoeffer previous to 11 o'clock on Thursday. Henry Graper, an Orange Valley grocer, testified to going to the house about noon and seeing Mrs. Meierhoeffer; Lammens was at the back door smoking. Witness did not see John Meierhoeffer. The woman was alone, and had opportunity to tell him of what had happened.

Hermann Z. Schwincher, a witness for the State, testified that he was out hunting on the Thursday of the murder with his son and John Crump. At noon they went to the Meierhoeffer's to get something to drink. They went into the kitchen and did not see Mrs. Meierhoeffer. Lammens was asked for something to drink, and said there was nothing. Krump remarked that there was milk in the cellar, and then Lammens went after it. He returned from the cellar excited, and trembling so much that he spilled the milk. He was saked if he was sick and he said "no, no." Witness paid him for the milk and he took change from a bag (witness shown a small money bag) like that.

Cross-examined by counsel for Lammens. "I saw Mrs. Meierhoeffer at the window in the afternoon."

To counsel for Mrs. Meierhoeffer. "I had with me a canteen of bitters, and wh-n I saw Lammens was excited I asked him to have a drink of the bitters."

At 1:30 p. m. the Court adjourned, in order that the jury might go to the Meierhoeffer house, and examine it with special reference to the testimony that had been given.

regularly cleaned. The neutral has hard secons to go to sea with unusual regularity, and if power to place and discharge his men is put in his hands, Captain Williams hopes, he says, to make the department work very successfully. This power, he insists, must be given him if the Police Commissioners expect to see clean streets.

The Board of Street Openings and Improvement yesterday heard the presentations of citizens concerning the proposed opening of Washington-st. from Little Twelfth to Fourteenth-st. Matthewson, President Morris, and others spoke in favor of the improvement. Resolutions were adopted to carry out the plan, and these will be laid before the Board of Aldermen. cerning the proposed opening of Washington-st.

NEW-YORK'S SCHOOL SYSTEM.

PRESIDENT WALKER, OF THE BOARD OF EDUCA-TION, OPPOSED TO AGITATION WHICH MAY DO HARM.

In the Board of Education yesterday, Stephen A. Walker, the newly-elected president, delivered an address on the present educational system of this city. He said in part:

He said in part:

We not only have two colleges, whose expenses are met by general taxation, with curricula embracing every known subject of academic instruction, but in the course of study of our grammar and primary schools, the subjects presented number differen or twenty, and, of course, embrace many which are neither essential nor elementary. Never having been able to give full assent to the arguments which are claimed to prove the propriety of making academic education a public clarge, I am ready, and even eager, to accept the present situation of affairs, and to say to the champions of what is called higher education, and to the less eloquent and active advecates of elementary instruction—let well chough abone. I forekee dangers in agitation and disturbance. I see much good in things as they are. If those who sincerely believe that the Government should be so, parental and munificent as to pince within the reach of every aspiring lad the means of the most ample technical or professional education will only rest centent with the large measure of success they have already rained, with the crowded scale of advanced learning endowed beyond all dreams of private munificence, by lexislation, which subsidizes for their support the property, real, personal and marked, of the whole commonwealth, they will not hazard the attainments already made. In pushing for more there is, in my judgment, a possibility of arousing a power in the community of great weight by reason of its wealth, its clear judgment, its eachervative and logged methods, which shall oring all the force of argument and inducation the original and inductal education in any form.

In regard to the preposed introduction of mechanical and induction deducation is as discussed in a public expense, of academic education in any form.

In regard to the proposed introduction of mechanical and industrial education, he said :

and industrial education, he said:

It may be that, as a result of one or all these demands, we shall see the time when the turning lathe and the sewing-machine shall be parts of general school supplies. The point I make is that agitation and discussion of this subject are not incumbent upon as, who are called to administer the echool system as we find it, not to revolutionize its fundamental principles or work experiments. When the time comes for such changes we shall all hear of it. It will be a voice as of the sound of many waters. The school system and its methods and subjects of instruction are surrounded by almost constitutional guarantees. The people created, and cherish this system and these methods and the existing modifications thereof. It is not the part of executive and administrative officers to venture upon changes that affect the substance of the system itself, and challenge its existence. There is enough to do in correcting errors of administration and detail, excessive expenditures and imperfect results, without mooting questions which imply a doubt whether the common school as we know it ought to exist it all.

The Committee on Course of Study was instructed to ousider the advisability of extending the course of primary instruction from three to four years. The chair then appointed as a Finance Committee, Commissioners Vermilye, Beardslee, Dowd, Bell and Kelly; on the conne of study and school books, Commissioners Donnelly, Katzenberg, Place, Pellew and Trand; on the Normal College, Commissioners Wickham, Bell, Kelly, Donnelly and Pellew; and on evening schools, Commis-sioners Beardslee, Bell, Nehrbas, Mamerre and Place.

CLOSING DANCE HOUSES.

Yesterday afternoon Harry Hill, the proprietor of the variety theatre on the corner of Crosby and Hous-on-sts., was arrested by Captain Byrnes, of the Fitsenth Precinct, on a warrant issued by Justice Otterbourg, on that Hill violated the Theatre law by selling liquor in the auditorium of his theatre during performances. He was taken to the Jefferson Market Police Court, where he waived an examination and was held in $500 bail for trial at the General Sessions. Justice

Otterbourg said:

When I issued this warrant I directed Captain Byrnes to execute it in the day time, for I do not think that it is in the interest of public order to have people taken at night and dragged through the streets to the police station. It may be just and right and according to law, but I do not believe in it, because many innocent persons, whom the police have no right to take, may be among the guilty. I wish it understood, however, that this is a warning to the frequenters of such places, and should a raid be subsequently made at night they can have nothing to complain of. I also which Mr. Bill to understand tuat if, pending this trial, he continues as he has been doing I will issue another warrant.

A confirmed card-player became convinced that card-playing is wrong-perhaps because he had a long-run of had luck, and perhaps for higher reasons. He broke the subject very gently to his companions when they were busy at their favorite game by saying, seriously, "Well, friends, I think after all, that a great deal of valuable time is wasted in playing cards." His partner, who never dreamed of the depth of the remark, answered: "Yes, I've often thought so too. Now, just think, for instance, how much time we waste in abuffling."—[Buffaio Express.

THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE FOR 1880.

THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE FOR 1880.

During the coming Presidential year The Teneure will be a more effective agency than ever for telling the news best worth knowing, and for enforcing sound politics. From the day the war closed it has been most anxious fer an end of sectional strike. But it saw two years ago, and was the first persistently to prochain the new danger to the country from the revived alliance of the Solid South and Tammany Hall. Against that danger it sought to raily the old party of Freedom and the Union. It began by demanding the abandonment of personal dislikes, and set the example. It called for an end to attacks more each other instead of the enemy; and for the hearitest agreement upon whatever fit candidates the mojerity should put up against the common foc. Since then the tide of disaster has been turned back; every doubtful State has been won, and theomens for National victory were never more cheering. The Solid South and its Northern alles favored Reputiation and we have kept the Public Faith. They have the Hallot-Lox, and we have restored Specie Payments. They sought to break down the saleguards of the ballot-Lox, and we have maintained the efection laws.

The Tribune's Position.

Of The Tribune's share in all this, those speak most enthemastically who have seen most of the struggle. The Michigan State Committee officially urged the cir-culation of The Tribune as the best means of educating the voters and bringing out the vote. The Maine Re-publicans declared that no other agency made so many votes. Ohlo, Pennsylvania and New-York tell the same story.

The Tribune's now spending more labor and money than ever before to hold the distinction it has long employed of the largest circulation among the best to be a specific and means to retain it, by becomenjoyed of the larger circulation among the people. It secured, and means to tetain it, by becoming the medium of the best thought and the voice of the best conscience of the time, by keeping abreast of the highest progress, favoring the free-t discussion, hearing all sides, appealing always to the best intelligence and the purest morality, and refusing to cater to the tasics of the vile or the prejudices of the ignorant.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE

is by far the most successful Semi-Weekly in the country, having four times the circulation of any other in New-York. It is specially adapted to the harce class of intelligent, professional or business readers too far from New-York to depend on our papers for the daily news, who nevertheless want the editorials, correspondence, book reviews, scientific matter, lectures, illerary miscellany, etc., for which The Tribuxe is famous. Like The Weekly it contains sixteen pages, and is in convenient form for binding.
